

GRAYS HUMBLIED WHEN VISITORS WIN BOTH GAMES

mond yesterday morning at 11:25 o'clock, and were met by a delegation from the local commission.

The Bankers took lunch at the Richmond Hotel, while the visiting committee were the guests of the Westmoreland Club.

After the game they were met by Dr. Price, Cleve Bailey and Julien H. Hill, president of the local commission, and were given an automobile ride to the Country Club, where a dance was given by Dr. Price to both teams. The Bankers will return to Washington sometime today.

While the Grays did not win the championship honors they drew first blood Labor Day in Washington, a thing which no other local team has ever done before.

The First Game.
The first game was a walkaway for the visitors. Davis, the first man up, started the bunting act, and Dyer followed with a bunt, which demoralized the defensive work of the Grays. Canepa was hit hard and was not given the very best of support.

The Bankers scored four runs in the initial inning. Davis and Dyer bunted safely; Rawlings hit for three bases, scoring two men, and scored on Meyer's sacrifice fly to centre. McDonald hit to left. Hayes hit through short and Riddle rolled an easy one down third base line. Zachary sent a sacrifice fly to centre, and Fieble fled to left. The six hits netted four runs, with two men left.

Another run was made by the Bankers in the third, and another in the seventh. In the eighth Davis went to second when Lehman, in right, dropped a fly. Dyer laid down a fielder's choice, and Davis was safe at third. Rawlings was safe on a fielder's choice. The increased salary limit, and a not too close observance of the rule requiring affidavits to accompany all pay rolls, are responsible for getting a better set of ball players.

Second Game.
The second game was clinched in the opening inning, when the Bankers, with three hits, coupled with Pohl's error, netted two runs, which practically won the game.

It happened in this manner: Davis fanned; Dyer hit safe to left for one base; Rawling lived on Pohl's error, when he muffed an easy double play; Meyer fled out to centre; Both McDonald and Hayes hit safe, and two runs scored; Riddle fled out to centre.

In their half the Grays were unable to score. The Bankers scored another run in the fifth. McDonald got a bingle through short and stole second. Hayes was out, hit by batted ball. Riddle doubled to centre, scoring McDonald. The next ten men were easy out to the infield.

The game was called at the beginning of the sixth on account of darkness, the Bankers at bat and one man on base and none out.

Both local and visiting umpires showed up well yesterday, and no kicks were made against the decisions given.

INTERCITY AMATEUR CHAMPIONS

Bankers, of Washington, who successfully defended their title yesterday by defeating Grays easily in both games of double-header.

be mounted officers and officers on bicycles, together with just ordinary foot guards. In addition to the police, the course will be patrolled by the committee, Governor Mann and Governor-elect Stuart, together with Mayor Almslie and Dr. Lambeth, will ride just ahead of the runners in an automobile. Added to all this will be automobiles carrying observers to prevent any irregularities. At a distance of about three blocks will be stationed timers and additional observers.

Need Fourteen Players.
The one iniquitous feature of the present rules, that of allowing but thirteen players to a club, including a playing manager, is sure to be amended for next season. The magnates have come to realize that with a heavy schedule, calling for double-headers each Saturday after July 4, added to which are the double-headers made necessary through postponed games, cannot be played with only thirteen men. This is one of the questions that will be discussed at the pennant-awarding meeting.

Nothing can be actually done at that meeting toward remedying the evil except to discuss it. The real business, such as election of officers and other matters regarding the policy of the league, must be deferred until the annual meeting, which usually happens in late December or early in the new year.

Coming to the question of officers, it is practically certain that all will be re-elected. President Boatwright will have no opposition. He has done remarkably well. While his administration has been productive of no new legislation, and while nothing of a constructive nature has been suggested by him, he has ridden placidly on peaceful seas and has won the confidence of the men who elect him. In the main, he has run. Everybody finishing gets something. The requirements that a physician's certificate accompany each entry blank makes it practically certain that every man part.

With academic schools, colleges, universities, Y. M. C. A.s, clubs and other organizations represented, it will be a fair test of Virginia's young manhood. Remember the race goes to the fellow who sticks to it, not to the flashy performer. It's grit and pluck and strength that counts, not terrific speed, wonderful sprints, or splendid form.

Send in your entry quick. The list of officials will be published complete within a few days. Numbers will be sent to the entrants just as soon as the entries are all in. The official entry blank and applications are received on no other blank—is published daily in The Times-Dispatch, together with the rules. Read this last-named and fill in the first, addressing the application blank to the Marathon Editor, The Times-Dispatch, Richmond, Va.

tain that every man entered will be ready and fit to go the distance. Reverting to the course, it is doubtful if ever a Marathon has been run over a more attractive route. Huge shade trees, venerable in their years of service line the streets. Not a hill is to be climbed; it is level all the way. The prettiest residential section of the South will be before the men. Banked on either side of the street, but kept back so as not to interfere with the runners, will be thousands of people to watch the stirring feats of the contestants.

Interest Grows Apace.
Planned originally as an incentive to young men to get themselves into good physical condition and keep themselves that way, the Marathon has developed into an event of far vaster proportions than was a first expected. The long list of entries received, the calibre of the men entering, the enthusiasm shown, all prove that the event was ripe. The Times-Dispatch hopes that the Marathon will become a great annual event; greater as the years go by. It is for the young men of the State of Virginia; it is to bring to life the dormant love of the open. The prizes are valuable only because the efforts of the men taking part deserve fitting reward. The chief end to be attained is educational—telling the hundreds who look upon physical endeavor as an idle effort, what it means to the men of to-morrow to be sound in body as well as in mind.

It isn't too late to get into condition for the run. If you have lagged, start training now and send in your entry. Good food, but not too much, absolute divorce from intoxicants, sensible clothing and a fair amount of daily exercise will fit the normal individual to make the race. Get into it. When the report goes forth of the wonderful success of this first attempt in the South of a Modified Marathon, let your name go along as one of those who helped make it a success. You may not win the first prize, but you will have done your part.

Fair Test for All.

Studebaker "SIX"

Six Cylinders
Six Passengers
Electric Starter
Electric Lights

$1550

"Look Around To Your Heart's Content—You'll Surely Come Back"

Your Studebaker dealer is not only willing, but glad, to have you "look around", after you have seen the Studebaker "SIX".

He means what he says. He feels perfectly safe.

There is nothing in the market that can win you away.

It is not easy for him, or for us, to tell the simple truth about the car without seeming to indulge in braggadocio.

Because the simple truth is bound to sound disparaging to competing cars.

The Question of Price
Let's assume that you do "look around".

The first thing you discover is that the Studebaker "SIX" is in a price division all by itself.

You've got to begin several hundred dollars higher up in your hunt for a car comparable with it.

Check One for the Studebaker.

The Question of Size
You are astonished to discover that the lesser price of the Studebaker is not explained by a lesser size.

The Studebaker "SIX" is a normal six—which means a six of the most generous proportions.

A seven-passenger six, in other words, (if used to its uttermost) with perfect freedom of movement front and back.

So you lose nothing here in the lower price—and gain nothing in the higher. Check Two for the Studebaker.

The Question of Beauty
There are those who contend that the Studebaker is the handsomest Six on the market.

Never mind that—it is a distinguished-looking Six at any rate.

There are none more beautiful—none more graceful.

So you won't be won away on that score.

Check Three for the Studebaker.

The Question of Workmanship
Bear in mind that you are supposed to be hunting for something that will justify you in not buying a Studebaker.

And immediately you encounter an insurmountable objection to buying any other car.

The Studebaker "SIX" is a manufactured Six.

Practically every other Six with which you will compare it is an assembled Six.

We mean by this, Sixes which are no larger, no more beautiful, but which sell for considerably more.

This almost ends the hunt right here, doesn't it?

Add fifty points to the other three we've checked for the Studebaker.

The Question of Fitness
Studebaker will build more Sixes than anyone else in the world this season.

Almost as many as all the other makers combined.

That accounts largely for the price.

It accounts also for that accuracy without which a Six is a dangerous experiment.

It accounts for mechanical niceties and full jeweled workmanship which amaze you at the Studebaker figure.

Buy It Because It's a Studebaker

"SIX" We say to you what your dealer will say to you—"Look around to your heart's content, you're bound to come back."

You'll buy this Six because it's a Studebaker "SIX". You'll buy it because its superiority will be forced upon you by comparison.

MAGNATES WILL END SEASON WITH PEACE JUBILEE

has let the league run itself, always ready to put a stop when the magnates went too far, but making no suggestions himself. He has kept the averages, furnished information at all times willingly, but has never posed as a reformer, which is probably the better plan after all.

In selecting his umpires, President Boatwright has had great success. He didn't have the best set of umpires in minor league baseball, but we did have probably as good a set as could be employed at the moment offered. Take it by and large, Mr. Boatwright has made such a president as the league probably wanted, or it may be that he made himself such a president. Zack Woodall will again be elected secretary of the league if he wants the job.

For 1914 all of the teams in the league have been looked out for in a managerial way save Richmond and Roanoke. The Tigers will suffer because of Presley's determination to leave baseball for good, and by the same token Richmond suffers, for Presley was to come to Richmond, had he determined to woo the fickle goddess. Secretary Bradley, of the Richmond team, doesn't expect to lose with a leader for several days. He, with the directors of the club, is anxious that something be done soon, because, as he expresses it, he wants the new man to have time to get acquainted to gather material for next season.

So far as Roanoke is concerned, Elmore Helms, who acts as secretary of the Tigers, reports that he has no one in view just now. Mr. Helms is a young man who has been playing a good policy of keeping his affairs to himself, which conclusion may mean much or little. At any rate, Joe Holland, of whom we have spoken on a previous occasion, is favorably spoken of in connection with the Roanoke outfit.

All of the teams in the circuit will start out with better prospects than last season. Roanoke, Richmond, Norfolk, Petersburg, Newport News especially, and even Portsmouth, in spite of sales that took the best of the Pirates away, all have something definite to build upon, and all of them have had the good judgment to employ managers in time to give them an opportunity to scan the field during the winter months.

Fortunately, the Virginia League has suffered little during the drafting period. Just one man was grabbed through the wire by the players—Tolson of Roanoke. Of course, the danger period isn't over yet. The big leagues have until October 26 to pick their choice, and after the majors come the class "A" and the class "A-1" leagues, but there is little probability that many will be molested, even though this announcement may hurt the pride of some of the youngsters, who believed that they would get a chance to go up via the drafting route.

With new managers for some of the teams, and with the managers retained, tried and found able, prospects are good to see rather better baseball next season. It is the first time in the history of the Virginia League, or at least within our knowledge, that a chance has been given to another coming season by what happened the reason previous.

Secretary Bradley expects to attend the meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, which will be held in Columbus, O., November 8. At that time he will be able to look over the field of idle ball players and may be able to enter into some trades.

If by that time the manager for the Colts has been selected he will also make the trip. A rather unwelcome bit of news has been received by the local owners. Player Allan Sandford, who was bought from the Rome, Ga. club, has been turned back to that team. The reason assigned by Secretary Farrell is that no sale can be consummated by minor league teams until after the drafting season has closed.

After the football season, Joe Heuser, keeper of the park, will begin work improving the grounds. There is much work to be done, some of which would have been impossible during the playing season. Several points on the diamond must be raised, and the whole outfield needs filling and tending. There has been some talk that the park would have to be moved to make way for the railroad station contemplated by the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, but from what can be gathered, there is little danger of this happening until after the 1914 season is over.

Roanoke Champs Win.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Lynchburg, Va., September 20.—The Virginia Bridge and Iron Company baseball team, city champions of Roanoke, this afternoon defeated Craddock-Terry champions of Lynchburg in a double-header. The score of the first game was 10 to 1 and of the second, 1 to 0.
